

Problem 21

Let M be the point set (a,b) and let $p = b$. So, p is a limit point of M . Now, for some $C > p$, the interval $[p,C]$ contains p , but no points of M . Therefore not every closed interval containing limit point p of M contains a point of M different from p .